Club Report BY SCOTT DOUGLAS AND PHOTOS BY JOHN SEMEDO

Last Meeting: For our April 3, 2019, meeting, we had 22 members, 2 YNs and 2 guests (who both joined—Lance Tribble and Ken Nicoll) come out.

Draws:

Peter Becker won $10 in the Attendance Draw bucket, so our May meeting will be back to $5.

The King Arthur's Treasure was the equivalent of 90 items and won by Mel Brown.

Always popular, our Daytona Draw drew more excitement as Mel Brown's ticket was drawn and he chose envelope 17. Atiq Khokhar had the highest bid of $30 and Mel took the money. Atiq went home with a 1994 RCM Uncirculated Set and a 2010 RCM Uncirculated Set retail value of $48.

Education:

As the World Banknotes 6 min. video (scheduled for April meeting) was tacked on the end of the 10 min. Coin Discoveries video (scheduled for March meeting), both videos were viewed at the March meeting.

As a result for 45 minutes the entire room joined in a conversation about cleaning coins, yes or no, and how to identify cleaned coins. This led to a long conversation on the upcoming "George Cook Canadian Coin Collection containing the 1911 Silver Dollar, 1921 Half Dollar, 1884 Large Cent Specimen, and many other rarities and the fact that it has been reported that the coins have been badly cleaned!"

On a positive note, several people expressed pleasure with the topic, and appreciated the value of this type of discussion at a coin club. [Note: the certification companies and the auctioneer are required to identify if a coin has been cleaned. In looking at the HA listings and images, the majority of the George Cook high-end coins have been certified and none of them indicate that a coin has been cleaned. There is nothing on the forum for this collection to indicate any coins were cleaned, and in much praise his collection, and sadness for his passing. https://www.coincommunity.com/forum/topic.asp?TOPIC_ID=342143] There are a couple other collections coming up, as collectors have sat on collections for over sixty years, and their estates held on even longer, so there should be more interesting Canadian coins on the market in the next year.

Coming to SWCS in Rockwood!: Your educational presentations scheduled are:

⇒ June ANNUAL PIZZA NIGHT (Look for GOLD in the Auction)—Researching & Writing a Numismatic Article: Ron Cheek—This is a departure from his usual

purely numismatic topics he has covered during the previous times he has visited the SWCS. Having published more than 100 articles, Ron feels it is time to pass on some of his experiences of researching and preparing an article for publication in a numismatic journal or club bulletin. Numismatic journals badly need more writers and good material to keep our hobby alive and thriving. Writing an article and seeing it in print can be very rewarding.

Ron will cover selecting a topic, how to approach research, where to look for information, organizing research findings, planning the article, and finally he'll discuss the writing process. The aim will be to pass on some tips and to encourage our club members to have a go at numismatic writing. Ron hopes that even experienced writers may pick up an idea or two.

- ⇒ July-October: LOOKING FOR VOLUNTEER PRESENTERS
- ⇒ November– War Memoir: Dave Mowat (once again there will be a connection to his family)
- ⇒ December–Christmas (or New Year Theme): Scott Douglas PLUS Food Bank presentation

Thank you for your Volunteerism: Thank you to all members and guests who helped set up and tear down for the meeting, and during the meeting. Many hands makes for light work!

Our Spring Coin Show: as our coin show fell on the last weekend of April; it could not be included in this issue. Please see highlights in the June newsletter, along with a list of volunteers, and the Dealer of the Show prize winner.

Auction: Peter Becker was our auctioneer hammering down the bids and Andrew Fedora was our auction runner, and of course, Lowell Wierstra organized the lots for the auction. May auction list is on the last page of this issue. Watch for our June (listings are included in this issue too) and July auction, as both have GOLD in them.

Lowell welcomes your consignments, and remember we keep our consignment fees very low, if not the lowest in Ontario. The SWCS commission charged to consignors: Sold for under $20, auction fee is 25 cents and items sold for over $20 fee is $1. Pretty simple. No buyers premium, no sales tax.

We are now accepting consignments for our September-December 2019 auctions. Kindly submit your completed consignment form with the items you are consigning.

Coins of British India

(Source: Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia)

British trading posts in India were first established by the East India Company (EIC) early in the seventeenth century, which quickly evolved into larger colonies covering a significant part of the sub-continent. Early settlements or factories included Masulipatnam (1611) and Madras (1640) in the south, Surat (1612) in the west, and modern-day Kolkata (1698-99) in the east. These colonies gave rise to Madras Presidency, Bombay Presidency, and Bengal Presidency, and each Presidency had a separate coinage and monetary system. In 1835, the EIC adopted a unified system of coinage throughout all British possessions in India and the older Presidency system was discontinued. After the Indian Rebellion of 1857, control of EIC territories passed to the British Crown. Coinage issued after 1857 were under the authority of the monarch as India became part of the British Empire. With the Royal Titles Act 1876, Victoria took the title "Empress of India", so in 1877 coin inscriptions changed from VICTORIA QUEEN to VICTORIA EMPRESS. There was a transition period after India gained independence on 15 August 1947, and the first set of republic India coins were issued in 1950.

Coinage under the British can be divided into two periods: East India Company (EIC) issues, pre-1835; and Imperial issues struck under direct authority of the crown. The EIC issues can be further subdivided into two subcategories: the Presidency issues, which comprise separate Madras Presidency, Bombay Presidency, and Bengal Presidency issues; and uniform coinage for all British territories from 1835 to 1858. Imperial issues bear obverse portraits of Queen Victoria (dated 1862-1901), Edward VII (dated 1903-1910), George V (dated 1911-1936), and George VI (dated 1938-1947). No British India coins were issued during the brief reign of Edward VIII.

East India Company

The English East India Company (EIC) was granted a royal charter by Queen Elizabeth I which allowed trade monopoly with eastern countries including Sumatra, Java, and India. The territories governed by the EIC were divided into three major administrative regions: Madras Presidency in the south, Bombay Presidency in the west, and Bengal Presidency in the east. Most of the north, however, for a long time continued to remain under the control of the Mughal emperor, and later, local rulers including the Marathas and Rajputs. Each of the three presidencies under EIC governance issued their own coins until a unified coinage throughout all territories was introduced in 1835. Early presidency issues often imitated local issues and the Mughal design in order to gain wider acceptance by the native population.

Early European style coins were not popular outside jurisdiction of their respective settlements. In spite of having their own mints, the EIC either sent its bullion to the Mughal mints or forged the common coins of the contemporary Mughal Emperor in 1717, the EIC obtained rights to strike coins in the name of the Mughal emperor Farrukhsiyar on the island of Bombay.

Madras Presidency

The major mints in the west responsible for issuing coins for the EIC included Surat, Bombay (Mumbai or Munbai), and Ahmadabad. From 1621 till 1800, the English sent their precious metal bullion to the Surat mint, controlled by the Nawab, to be coined into local gold mohurs and silver rupees. As the Surat mint was unable to meet the required production rate, silver was also sent to the Ahmadabad mint in 1636. During later years, the Ahmadabad mint also struck rupees for the Bombay Presidency in the name of Muhammad Akbar II with the dates 1233-1241 AH (1817-1825 CE).

In December 1672, the EIC started a mint in Bombay and European style gold, silver, copper, and tin coins were struck. The gold was named Carolina, the silver coin Anglina, the copper Copperoon, and the tin coin called Tinny. The exchange rate was set at 11 Tiduckone Copperoon and 48 Copperoons to one Anglina. No gold coins (Carolinas) were struck until 1717. The obverse of the silver and copper coins showed inside an inner circle the arms of the Company, and within an outer circle the legend HON: SOC ANG:INC: ORI, for Honorablis Societas Anglicana Indiarum Orientalium, or "Honourable English East India Company." The reverse of these coins had the inscription MON BOMBAY ANGLIC REGIMS A ° 7 ° in the centre and another legend A DEO PAX & INCREMENTVM around it.

After issuing coins for the EIC for a number of years, the Surat mint finally came under direct control of the Company in 1800. Gold mohurs, silver rupees, and fractional values were struck in the name of the Mughal emperor Shah Alam II bearing the frozen regnal year 46. The Surat mint was finally closed down in 1815. A number of privy marks consisting of dots, crescents, and crown-like symbols were used and are helpful in correct attribution of the striking period and mint.

Bengal Presidency

Even though the British had established a trading post at Fort William (in modern-day Kolkata), Bengal Presidency acquired its proper form after the Battle of Buxar in 1764. As an outcome of the Indian defeat, Shuja-ud-Daula of Oudh and the Mughal Emperor Shah Alam II signed the Treaty of Allahabad, granting the EIC rights to collect revenues from large parts of eastern India. Early Bengal Presidency issues were struck under the name of the Mughal Emperor Alamgir II, and later Shah Alam II. The monetary system followed (which was to be an Indian standard till 1 April 1957) was,

- 1 pie = $\frac{1}{3}$ pice = $\frac{1}{12}$ anna
- 1 pice = $\frac{1}{4}$ anna = $\frac{1}{64}$ rupee
- 1 anna = $\frac{1}{16}$ rupee
- 15 rupees (approximately) = 1 mohur

Imperial coinage

After the Indian Mutiny of 1857-58, the administration of British India was transferred from the EIC to the British Crown. From 1862 till Indian Independence in 1947, circulation coins were minted under the direct authority of the Crown. The early Imperial issued coins continued to bear a fixed date, for example, rupee coins with the year 1862. This practice was intended to discourage the prevalent 'batta' system, i.e., a heavy penalty imposed by money changers or 'shroffs' on coins bearing an older date to account for wear and weight loss, irrespective of the actual condition of the coin.

Victoria Queen and Empress

Gold coinage

Early gold coinage with Queen Victoria's crowned bust consisted of one mohur coins dated 1862. These coins were of the same weight (11.66 grams = one Tola) and fineness (0.9167) as the EIC issued mohurs. These coins, probably minted between 1866 and 1869, were trade coinage and not recognized as legal tender. A number of varieties (including proofs) are known with minor variations in the reverse and obverse decoration details. 'Victoria Queen' mohurs were also struck with the year 1875, as well as 1870 proof issues with a mature bust of Victoria.

In 1876, Victoria assumed the title of 'Empress of India' and, from 1877, the legend on the obverse of all coins was changed to 'Victoria Empress.' Gold mohurs with the new obverse legend were issued between 1877 and 1891. The mintage of these mohurs for any given date is relatively low, making them considerably scarce. Fractional values of the mohur (nominally valued at fifteen silver rupees) were also struck in denominations of ten and five rupees between 1870 and 1879. Except for a small number of ten and five rupees dated 1870, most of the fractional mohurs were proof issues. Varieties with both the younger and mature busts exist.

Victoria Queen one mohur, dated 1862, Calcutta mint.

Silver coinage

Currency and proof issues of the 1862 dated rupee coins have a number of different obverse and reverse die varieties, which are helpful in identification of the mint. The design of the coin, however, remained largely unchanged. From 1863 till 1875, the Bombay mint introduced an unusual system of dots to date the coins. The dots occur on the reverse below the date, above the word 'ONE', or in both positions. From 1874, this practice was halted and coins began to be dated continuously. From this development, it may be inferred that by this time the 'batta' system must have all but disappeared. As with all other Victoria coinage, the title on the obverse was changed from 'Victoria Queen' to 'Victoria Empress' in 1877. Calcutta mint coins usually carry no mint mark or an incused 'C' at the bottom of the reverse. Bombay mint issues are usually marked by a raised bead below the date, or a raised / incused 'B' in the top or bottom flower, with some exceptions. Rupee coins with Victoria's bust were minted until her death in 1901.

Fractional denominations of half rupee, quarter rupee, and two annas were also issued under Victoria's reign. The dot-dating system was not used for these denominations, and is unique to the 1862 dated Bombay rupees. Similar to the rupee coins, the title of Queen was changed to Empress in 1877. The Bombay and Calcutta issues have mint identification marks similar to the rupee issues (no mark or 'C' incused for Calcutta, bead or raised / incused 'B' for Bombay). Different reverse and obverse die varieties are known for each denomination.

Type-set of Queen Victoria coins, silver and copper, all dated 1862. The one rupee coin, struck at the Bombay mint, has 2 dots below the top flower and 0 dots above the bottom flower (2/0).

Edward VIII

During the short reign of Edward VIII, no coins were issued in India bearing his portrait. However several coins were issued by the states of Kutch and Jodphur that bore his name in Indian Script. Several coins bearing the portrait of Edward VIII are sometimes offered for sale on online auction sites, but these 'coins' are almost certainly modern productions and were never officially issued.

South Wellington Coin Club founded 1997

George VI

1939 rupee change in silver content wartime measures

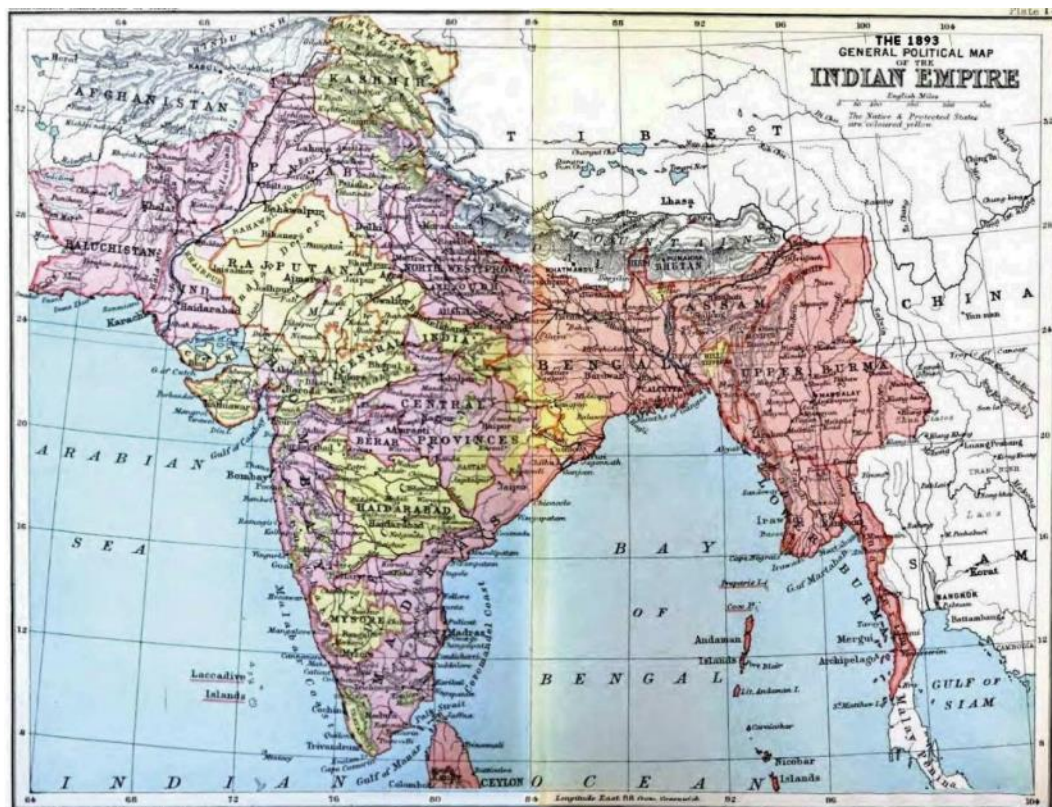

Coins of the following denominations were issued:

- $\frac{1}{2}$ Anna
- $\frac{1}{2}$ Pice
- $\frac{1}{4}$ Anna
- Pice
- $\frac{1}{2}$ Anna
- Anna
- 2 Annas
- $\frac{1}{4}$ Rupee
- 4 Annas
- 8 Annas
- $\frac{1}{4}$ Rupee
- One Rupee
- 5 Rupees ($\frac{1}{2}$ Mohur)
- 10 Rupees ($\frac{3}{4}$ Mohur)
- 15 Rupees (Mohur)
- 30 Rupees (2 Mohur)
- British Gold Sovereign, as an emergency war issue, in 1918.

There are many rare coins of this period which interests coin collectors. The 1939 Rupee is the most expensive rupee, as after 1939 all silver coins effectively became less pure, due to the shortage of silver during World War II. The 1947 Rupee, half rupee, quarter rupee and Anna coins are also of special interest to collectors, since that was the last year British issued coins were circulated in India.
